RASHAYA Lebanon (R) - Israeli-backed militiamen fought pitched battles with resistance fighters in South Lebanon Wednesday and security sources reported four dead. They said an officer of the Israeli-backed South Lebanon Army (SLA) militia and three fighters of Hizbollah died in the battles at the village of Outrani. The sources reported two SLA men wounded. The Islamic Resistance said three of its men were wounded in the fighting. It also said it killed or wounded five SLA troops. There was no report on casualties from the SLA. The sources said the battle erupted with rocket-propelled grenades, mortars and machinegun fire when Hizbollah lighters infiltrated into Qotrani. 100 kilometres north of Marjayoun, the SLA headquarters. The SLA, backed by tanks and Israeli helicopters, opened fire on Hirbollah fighters as they sneaked into Ootrani. The village lies three kilometres inside the "security zone," 2 strip up to 15 km deep set up by Israel.

King receives cables from Assad, Qadhafi

AMMAN (Petra) - His Majesty King Hussein Wednesday received a cable from Syrian President Hafez Al Assad voicing thanks and appreciation for the King for his congratulations to him and to the Syrian people on the occasion of the 42nd anniversary of Syria's Independence Day. Assad wished the King continuing good health and happiness and the Jordanian people further progress and prosperity. The King also received a cable of congratulations from Libyan leader Muammar Qadhafi congratulating him on the occasion of the holy month of Ramadan. The Libyan leader wished the King continuing good health and happiness and the Jordanian people further progress and prosperity.

Shuitz: Hijackers should be punished

HELSINKI (AP) - U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz said Wednesday that letting the hijackers of a Kuwait Airways Jumbo jet go free would violate international standards and not be "a proper thing to do." They are not only injackers but murderers," Shultz said at a news conference. He said his reports from Algiers were fragmentary and he did not want to question the Algerian government, which reportedly guaranteed the gunmen sale passage in exchange for releasing 31 hostages they had held for 16 days. Two other passengers were killed during the ordeal.

Sudan says 500 rebels killed

KHARTOUM (R) — Sudanese troops, fighting off an ambush, killed 500 rebels in a six-hour battle near the southern town of Nasir, the government said Wednesday. A military communique said 43 government troops were killed and several wounded in Sunday's fighting. Government forces entered Nasir, in Upper Nile region 800 kilometres southeast of Khartoum, Monday. Rebel soldiers of the Sudan People's Liberation Army (SPLA) had fled the area. it said. ### Soviet panel recommends INF approval MOSCOW (R) - A special Soviet parliamentary commission has recommended Kremlin ratification of the superpower pact banning medium-range nuclear missiles, TASS news agency re-ported Wednesday. The official news agency said the commission had concluded that the pact would "enhance rather than reduce the security" of the Soviet Union, the United States and the rest of the world. It said the panel recommended that the foreign relations commissions of the two Soviet houses of parliament propose the treaty's ratification when they report to the Praesidium of the Supreme Soviet, the highest

U.N. operations resume in N. Ethiopia

ADDIS ABABA (R) - United Nations staff have returned to famine relief work in the northern Ethiopian provinces of Entrea and Tigray after being ordered out earlier this month, a U.N. official siad Wednesday. Martti Ahtisaari, special envoy of U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar, said before leaving for Geneva after a fourday visit: "Following my discussions with the government of Ethiopia, we are resuming our operations in Tigray and Eritrea." Relief workers were ordered out of the two provinces when the Ethiopian government said its own relief commission would take over the famine relief programme there. The government's order followed an offensive by rebels who captured several towns from government

Tunisia issues warrants for 3 of Abu Jihad assassins

TUNIS (R) - Tunisia said Wednesday it was issuing international arrest warrants for three members of an Israeli assassination squad which gunned down Palest nian leader Khalit Al Wazir (Abu Jihad). The official news agency TAP said President Zine A! Abidine Ibn Ali ordered warrants issued for three of the attackers, who used Lebanese passports to enter Tunisia. It gave the names in which the passports were issued as Khalil Kati, Haonata Allam Mustapha and Goriah Najir Rachad. The agency did not make clear whether an inquiry into the killing of Abu Jihad had established whether the passports were false.

The investigation had shown that the assassins left by sea, TAP said, adding that the three bired getaway cars from local firms for the attack at Abu Jihad's Tunis home. The passports issued in the names of Kati and Mustapha showed the bearers to have been Lebanese nationals since 1948. The one ssued to Rachad said he had been a Lebanese national since 1947. TAP did not say whether these were dates of birth or where the passports were found. Tunisia has said preliminary inquiries have shown that about seven attackers were involved in the shooting of Abu Jihad and three members of his staff, including two bodyguards. It said two days ago that Israel employed electronic warfare in the raid, using a military plane whose jamming device cut out local communications in the district of Abu Jihad's home. The U.N. Security Council will meet Thursday to take up a Tunisian complaint against Israel over the assassination, a U.N.

Orange blossom honey from the River Jordan

By a Jordan Times Reporter

HUNDREDS of families sampled orange blossom honey from the banks of the River Jordan on Friday. April 15, at the Da'our honey facility in Naour. The annual Honey Day was hosted by Wajih Da'our who offered trays full of honeycomb cubes for finger eating, and honey in cups with plastic spoons for those who didn't want to get their fingers sticky. The pale fragrant honey, which was available for sale as well as tasting, will doubtless flavour the Ramadan sweets of many of these families. Parents and children relaxed around a shaded fountain and observed a small glass-encased hive of the bees at work. In the meantime, Daour's staff laboured to process tons of the annual harvest, while potential customers observed the steps involved in getting the hon-ey from the comb into a glass jar to take home.

Da'our is an electrical engineer by profession, and a bee keeper by avocation. His bee field is located far from Naour, in a luxuriant orange grove at the northern end of the Jordan Vallev. He started his experiments with apiculture in Jordan eight years ago by importing 20 American production queens from Texas and introducing them to hives of Jordanian bees. That summer each hive produced 8 times as much honey as the year before. The offspring of the original queens, when mated with Jordanian drones, produced very active hives of somewhat aggressive bees well suited to defending against the natural enemies in their environment. Bees accomplish 80 per cent of all flower pollination, and their presence in an orchard increases orange production by over 30 per cent according to Da'our.

In 1986 when most of Jordan's bee population was lost to the Varroa Mite. Da'our used Mavrik-treated wood strips to protect his hives against disease and his bees produced their normal output of honey -- over 45 kilos per hive. He has written about the success of this treatment in journals published for beekeepers in America where the mite is just beginning to spread.

Da'our participated in a recent field day for bee keepers sponsored by the Ministry of Agriculture, the United States Agency for International Development (USAID), and the University of Jordan. Bees are important not just because of the delicious honey they produce, but more so because, while they gather pollen. they are fertilising crops of all kinds, from grains to fruit trees. Raising bees successfully is an exacting science, and the field day demonstrated basic apiculture, ways to protect hives against bee diseases and pesticides, and methods of breeding bees that will not be too aggressive to handle and will produce more honey.

Jordan meets the demands of a large local market by importing over 300 tons of honey annually. Abundant local flowers together with long periods of warm temperature make honey production a promising industry here. USAID has provided over JD 6.000 for this educational effort.

The field day was organised by Dr. Ibrahim Nazer of the Faculty of Agriculture at the University leading efforts to organise the participants into a private sector Beekeepers Association so that they can all benefit from sharing their expertise. Dr. Nazer recently attended a short course at Ohio State University in selecting. breeding, producing and introducing queens. He demonstrated queen bees, and other new equipment recently acquired by the university for teaching purposes.

pants toured the Da'our honey processing plant. At the stainless steel equipped facility participants abserved efficient methods for removing honey from the comb, uncapping the pure wax seals on each honey-filled compartment by machine, spinning the combs to extract the honey, filtering and bottling the product. The valuable wax, a by-product, was then rolled into "foundation of Jordan. Dr. Nazer will be sheets" upon which the bees could construct more combs when it is returned to the hive. USAID assisted Da'our in attending training at Weaver and Kelley, leading U.S. honey producers in Texas and Kentucky, last autumn to study queen breeding and insemination, and manufacture of bee supplies. the use of a new machine for Da'our stocks and sells a full instrumental insemination of range of equipment for bee keepers including wooden hives and metal queen excluders - which keep honey in upper stories of the In the afternoon the partici- hive free of larva.

Smokeless tobacco: New threat to society

TOKYO — A "pre-emptive ban" on smokeless tobacco in countries where the product has not been introduced has been called for by a group of experts meeting under the aegis of the World Health Organisation, to "prevent a new public health epidemic from a new form of tobacco use."

Smokeless tobacco is "now being prompted cynically and aggressively around the world despite its known harmful health consequences," the group said as the basis for its recommenda-

Thus countries where smokeless tobacco is not used "should as a matter of urgency, pre-emptively ban the manufacture, importation and sale of smokeless tobacco products before they are introduced into the market."

The use of certain forms of smokeless tobacco - that is, tobacco not smoked but chewed, dipped, or just left in the mouth, even overnight between gum and cheek — has been prohibited in Hong Kong, Ireland, Israel and New Zealand.

Although promoted as an alternative to cigarettes, specially in North America and Western Europe, smokeless tobacco is described by WHO as a "new threat to society" - particularly to young males who are thus far the major targets in sophisticated promotional and advertising campaigns.

Studies have shown "beyond any reasonable doubt," according to Dr. Roberto Masironi, manager of WHO's programme on tobacco or health, that smokeless tobacco is a serious health hazard as a cause of cancer of the oral cavity and of micotine

Its use had led to leukoplakia, white patches on gums, which in turn may develop into cancer, and to gums that recede away from the crowns of teeth thereby leaving roots exposed.

Its addition, he says, is "similar to that produced by cigarettesmoking and by other addictive drugs such as morphine or cocaine." Or, as put by the experts: "All tobacco contains carcinogens, and is addictive, and as such, all tobacco use constitutes a health hazard."

In another major recommendation, the experts urged countries where smokeless tobacco is used to subject the product to legislation that is at least as strong as that for cigarettes. The primary objective, however, should be eradication of use.

Among other measures called for are the prohibition of sales to children and adolescents, the prohibition of promotion in the mass media, as well as the involvement of health personnel and teachers in health education drives.

Among techniques used to promote smokeless tobacco are free samples of clothing with brand names, the "introductory" offer of smokeless tobacco in small porous pouches like tea-bags, the sponsorship of sporting events by manufacturers and the endorsement of smokeless tobacco by sports personalities — WHO press

Jerash committee reviews festival

AMMAN (Petra, J.T.) — Her North Korea, Iraq, Syria, Egypt, Majesty Queen Noor visited Morocco, Lebanon and Kuwait. Jerash Wednesday where she chaired a meeting of the Higher National Committee for the Jerash Festival of Culture and

The committee reviewed and endorsed an agenda for the seventh festival which is to be held in the ancient Greco-Roman city this summer.

According to an official statement the following countries are to take part in the festival this summer: Italy, Britain, Bulgaria, France, USA, Yugoslavia, the Soviet Union, Greece, the Philippines, Pakistan, East Germany.

The statement said that folk troupes from these countries will be presenting new tastes of national folk art at the festival which will also display books, paintings and present Arabic poetry reading.

The festival will be held between July 13 and 31, according to the statement.

The Queen last January chaired the committee meeting for an evaluation of the sixth festival, held in July 1987 and a review of the different functions of the seventh festival.

JEA works on supply of electricity to Kharraneh broadcasting facilities

Jordan Electricity Authority (JEA) is currently carrying out a project of supplying electric power to radio broadcasting facilities being set up near Qasr Kharraneh east of Amman, according to a JEA official.

He said that 60 per cent of the work of installing equipment and laying cables for the project has been completed.

The work entails setting up a transformer station, and expanding the Sahab station to supply the required power for the new radio facilities, the official said.

Minister of Information Hani covering North and South Amer-Khasawneh earlier this month visited Kharraneh broadcasting ca, the Gulf states, Sudan, Saudi transmission station where work Arabia and Yemen. started in 1986.

According to officials, experimental transmission is due to begin in August 1988, and the new station is expected to make a wider coverage than the existing

They said that the new station will have short, medium and long wave transmission systems, with the short wave transmitter broadcasting at 500 kilowatt power,

The medium wave transmitter with a 1.000 kilowatt power, covers the Gulf region, Saudi Arabia, Iraq and North Africa, especially at night, while the long wave transmitter which has a 1,200 kilowatt power, provides local coverage and areas around Jordan day and night.

The project, being implemented by a Swiss firm, is set up on a 25 square kilometre land.

Amman, Baghdad discuss role of Agaba port in Iraqi trade

AMMAN (Petra, J.T.) — A team of officials from the Iraqi Ministry of Industry and Trade met in Amman Wednesday with Minister of Transport and Telecommunications Khaled Al Haj Hassan to discuss the transportation of Iraqi goods through the seaport of Agaba.

The two sides reviewed an earlier agreement for the exportation of 400,000 tonnes of Iraqi sulphur and 200,000 tonnes of super phosphate annually via the Jordanian port. The minister said that Jordan would continue to offer Iraq all the necessary facilities to enable it to export its products, and the delegation leader voiced his country's appreciation to Jordan for its support and help, at a time when it is involved in fending off external danger.

Haj Hassan Tuesday visited the headquarters of the Arab Maritime Bridge Company and urged rammes for the company's operations in two stages, ensuring development and success.

The company groups Jordan, Iraq and Egypt and has a $6 million capital shared equally by the three countries.

Haj Hassan underlined the importance of the company's operations through the Agaba-North Sinai land-sea route to bolster inter Arab trade.

The minister heard a report by the company director general on preliminary steps taken for such operations, which include transporting goods and passengers between Iraq, Jordan and Egypt. its management to work out prog- and inspected the company's financial and administrative reg-

The joint company, which began operations last month, is reported by Al Ra'i Arabic daily as transporting no less than 2,000 passengers between the three countries on a daily basis. The joint company owns two large vessels at present which serve as ferry boats transporting passengers and their vehicles and cars between Nweibeh and

The three sides had agreed that Mr. Suleiman Mitwalli, the Egyptian minister of transport, should be president of the company's board of directors for the first two years, then the post will rotate between ministers of the three countries.

Upon the formation of the company, Jordan announced that it will be open for other Arab states to join.

Mitwalli said the new company is bound to promote inter-Arab economic integration.

Balance, fairness

ISRAELI Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's suggestion that Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze should visit Israel during his upcoming trip to the Middle East is a further indication that a gradual return to normal ties between the Soviet Union and Israel is in the making, and we suspect that such a development bodes well for prospects for resolving the Arab-Israeli conflict through peaceful negotiations. If an international conference is to be held, the Soviets will have to play a key role in it, along with the United States and the other permanent members of the U.N. Security Council. This suggests that Israel and the Soviet Union should have normal diplomatic ties, and Mr. Shamir said that such a development would help peace prospects.

But this is only half the picture. The other half is that the United States should have similarly normal relations with the Palestinian people, notably through their sole legitimate representative, the PLO. The fact is that both superpowers must be involved in promoting a negotiated settlement, and probably in multilateral arrangements to guarantee it as well. The agreement on the Soviet withdrawal from Afghanistan suggests that the two superpowers have the interest and the ability to work together to help resolve regional conflicts in an equitable and realistic manner; and we hope that such joint action, based on the principles of international law and the dictates of universally accepted human and political rights, could prove fruitful in other regional conflicts, such as the Middle East, southern Africa or Latin America.

A key element of such an approach, however, is balance and fairness. In this case, it would seem logical, even imperative, that the United States and the Soviet Union should have normal working relationships with the two key protagonists in the region, namely Israel and the Palestinians. The Israelis would be naive to expect that they can call for normal ties with Moscow while Washington refuses to deal with the PLO. A more realistic approach would be to foster good working relationships among all the concerned parties, as a key step towards convening an international conference in an atmosphere that would be conducive to trust and compromise. To see the Soviets moving towards normal ties with Israel while the Americans continue to act in a hostile manner towards the Palestinians and the PLO strikes us as lacking the sort of balance that the situation warrants.

Al Ra'i: Israeli crime

THE Israeli occupation authorities have deported another eight Palestinians from the occupied Arab territories to Lebanon in yet another crime to be committed against the Palestinian people who are uprising for freedom. This action reflects the criminal nature of the Israelis who are used to committing all sorts of oppression against the Arabs, but it also manifests the great fear dominating the Israeli society which has usurped Arab lands, and rules out any form of co-existence between the Arabs and Jews in Palestine. Since this is a struggle for existence on the land then there can be only one result: Either the Arabs remain living in their homeland or the Zionists will succeed to take their place. The deportation of the eight Arabs is part of Israel's established policy to consolidate its occupation hold over the Arab land and the Arab people. Such actions are in flagrant violation of international principles and human rights. This deportation act reflects Israeli leaders failure to put down the revolt and contain the rage of the protesters who reject occupation and continue to offer sacrifice for freedom and liberation. This policy will not succeed in stifling the spirit of resistance among the Palestinians and will not stop the legitimate owners of the land from purusing their efforts to regain their property. The Palestinian youths will continue to shake the ground under Israel's feet through their stones and their determination to fight and struggle against the enemy. But it is the duty of all peace loving nations to condemn such Israeli crimes and help re-establish justice in our land.

Al Dustour: Encouraged by U.S. vetoes

THE Israelis deported eight more Arabs from their homeland in total disregard of the will of the international community and the United Nations organisation. The deportation followed another one just a few days ago, and both were justified by Israel as "security measures to ensure stability and peace in the occupied territories." Israel. encouraged by the U.S. veto at the Security Council and lack of proper response from the world community, is going ahead with the deportation policy with the hope of stemming the uprising. Of course Israeli leaders are responsible for the eviction of the eight Arabs, but U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz bears part of the responsibility because it was he who pledged that the U.S. will never permit the Security Council to pass any resolution condemning Israel's actions. It is this kind of encouragement which Israel gets from the U.S. that makes it adamant in its position and pursuing a criminal course in dealing with the Arabs. Shultz's statement can only be regarded as a green light for Israel to go ahead with repressive measures against the Palestinians, including deportation. We are not surprised to see Israel pursuing the policy of deportation since the Arab World remains impotent, and unable to take any retaliatory action to deter the Jewish state from taking these measures. These Israeli actions and the on-going repression being practised on our people should prompt all Arab countries to question the U.S. about its behaviour. which is indeed encouraging the Israeli enemy in pursuing such crimes. The Arabs should question the status of the U.S. as a mediating power in the Middle East problem, and should ask it to stop its prevarication and deception in its dealings with the Arabs.

Sawt Al Shaab: Relying on U.S. support

ISRAEL'S deportation of eight more Arabs from their homeland forms part of the Jewish state's repressive policy against the Palestinian people who are involved in an uprising against occupation. Despite world-wide condemnation of Israel's oppression in the occupied territories. Israeli leaders seem to be intent on pursuing their criminal policies, relying on American support and unlimited help at military, diplomatic and economic levels. There is no doubt that Washington's resort to the veto at the U.N. Security Council last week encouraged israel to go ahead with plans to carry out more deportations. If Israel believes that through these actions it can stem the uprising it must be wrong, because the Palestinians are determined to rid themselves of occupation and win freedom.

American Christian Zionists see in Israel the fulfilment of Biblical prophecies

By Rev. Donald E. Wagner

The following is the third part of a study on Western fundamentalist Christian Zionism presented by the writer to a Middle East Council of Churches working group in Limassol. Cyprus in April, 1988. The Jordan Times is serialising the study in four parts.

America

A. FROM 1735 to 1775 the dominant view among American Evangelicals and revivalist stone initiated an intensive campreachers such as Jonathan Edwards was postmillennialism. All taught the Second Coming and personal conversion. Many saw America as the New Israel which was called to bring the world to belief in Jesus Christ, thus ushering in the New Kingdom.

B. From 1800 to 1850 an emphasis was placed on the holiness doctrine and millennarianism. In the 1840's, a teaching called Millerism swept the east coast of the United States with many adherents selling their belongings to meet Jesus in 1843. The broader Great Awakening and emphasis on revivalist preaching and Biblical prophecy prepared the way for Darby and the premillennialist doctrine to take hold following the turmoil of the Civil War period (1860-1865).

C. During the period from 1867 to 1920, the important Bible and Prophecy Conference Movement provided a significant forum for Darby and other premillennialists to articulate their views. By the late 1880's premillennialism and a form of Christian Zionism were widely adopted by American Evangelicals and many leaders within mainstream Protestantism (Presbyterians, Episcopalians, Methodists, etc.).

D. The major American figure to popularise a political form of Christian Zionism was William E. Blackstone, author of the bestselling book "Jesus Is Coming" in 1881. He organised the first in Palestine. Six years before Theodore Herzl convened the World Zionist Congress. Blackpaign, gathering support from U.S. Senators, the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, and such business figures as John D. Rockefeller, Charles B. Scribner, and J.P. Morgan. The campaign called upon then President Benjamin Harrison to call for the creation of a Jewish State in Palestine. Blackstone also had contact with Herzl. When the Zionist leader began to discuss with the British government the possibility of establishing a Jewish state in Uganda or Argentina, Blackstone sent him a Bible with all passages referring to Israel and Palestine underlined, with clear instructions to the effect that only Palestine must be the site of the Jewish state.

E. The most important instrument of spreading the premillennial dispensationalist doctrine, and as such, Christian Zionism, was the publication of the Scofield Reference Bible in 1909. C.I. Scofield created an edition of the Bible with notes and commentary based upon the premillennial dispensationalist approach. It quickly became the only edition read by American Evangelicals and the new fundamentalist movement.

F. By World War I, premillennialism was the approach to Biblical eschatology among American Evangelicals. They took their name and doctrinal prog-ramme from a series of pamphlets which was titled "The Fundamentals" and distributed free across the United States. Both Evangelicals and fundamentalists supported the doctrine that the creation of a Jewish state in Palestine would fulfill certain Biblical prophecies, but the average believer did not reflect upon the Biblical and political presuppositions and ramifications of such a position. The premillennial dispensationalist approach began to be prominent in many mainstream Protestant denominations, particularly at the level of the laity and in conservative circles of the clergy.

The revival of fundamentalist Christian Zionism in the 1970s-80s

Christian Zionism was neither a movement nor a well developed system of theology in American Evangelical or fundamentalist circles until the mid-1970s although both circles generally accepted the essential premises of Christian Zionism. However, the birth of Israel in 1948 was, for most Evangelicals and fundamentalists, confirmation that their premillennialist doctrine was correct and that Jesus' return was near. Israel's lightning victory in 1967 and its capture of Jerusalem provided ample proof that they were in the last days. Billy Graham's father-in-law, L. Nelson Bell, wrote in the major Evangelical journal "Christianity Today": "That for the first time in more than 2000 years Jerusalem is now completely in the hands of the Jews gives a student of the Bible a thrill and a renewed faith in the accuracy and validity of the Christian Zionist position in the form of a best-selling paperback and motion picture. By the early 1970s there was an explosion of publications and television evangelists who proclaimed a form of Christian Zionism within the premillennialist doctrines, including predictions of events during the last days. By 1976 a religious and political marriage was consummated between American Zionist organisations, Israeli leadership, and fundamentalist Christian Zionists. A. In 1976-77, four events occurred which accelerated American Christian Zionism as a political phenomenon: 1. Menachem Begin and his Likud Bloc came to power in Israel in 1977 on a revisionist Zionist platform which utilised Biblical concepts.

2. In the United States, a triangular political force developed among neo-conservative political theorists, the Israeli lobby, and fundamentalist Christians. They found general agreement existed on many domestic and foreign policy issues, particularly the priority of Israel. The Israeli lobby recognised that the fundamentalists could be a key to develop political support from the 50-60 million American Evangelicals.

3. In 1976, Jimmy Carter, a "born again" Southern Baptist Sunday School teacher, was elected President, drawing heavily on the Evangelical and fundamentalist vote. Carter, however, upset the Israeli lobby and fundamentalist Christians when he called for the creation of a Palestinian homeland, thus beginning his loss of support from the above voting blocs.

4. The Israeli lobby and Christian Zionists initiated a national published between 1910-1915 ing both a premillennialist and campaign against Carter's sup-advertisements in major American newspapers. This enormously costly campaign, which took a clear premillennialist Christian Zionist approach, was titled "Evangelicals' Concern for Israel." Several major American fundamentalist leaders signed the advertisement, including the entertainer Pat Boone, Dr. Vernon Grounds (President of the Conservative Baptist Seminary), Dr. Kenneth Kantzer (President of Trinity Divinity School), and

B. The 1980s: The election of Ronald Reagan to the presidency of the United States ushered in a significantly pro-Israel era with several members of the president's cabinet holding the premil-lennialist perspective. The presi-

> 2. In another conversation, the president and Senator Howell Hefflin of Alabama struck a similarly theme, the senator reported: "We got off into the Bible a bit. We were talking about the fact that the Middle East, according to the Bible, would be the place where Armageddon would start. The president was talking to me about the scriptures and I was talking a little to him about the Scriptures. He interprets the Bible and Armageddon to mean that Russia is going to get in-volved in it."

Here we see one of the major attractions of the premillennialist-Christian Zionist scheme. The role of Israel in the premillennialist scenario, as by Hal Lindsay and others, is to defeat "Russia" according to their reading of Eze-kiel 38-39 (Gog and Magog), Daniel 9, Revelation.

3. It is still too early to discern what direction the politicised Christian Zionists will take in the post-Reagan era. The decline of Pat Robertson's presidential candidacy and recent scandals involving certain televangelist indicate there may be a "pulling back" by the pro-Israeli lobby and a desire to recover the Catholic and mainline Protestant churduring the Pope's U.S. tour (September, 1987) and upon Protestant denominations indicate The nature of this conversation there may be such a plan. # By Mohamad M. Alami

THE ISRAELI-PALESTINIAN conflict has been blessed with more proposed solutions than any other in modern history. These wide-ranging solutions have been offered by not only the parties to the conflict but also by former powers, current superpowers and potential world powers.

Some proposals have been prudently tailored by one or more parties to fit some predetermined objectives. (This is not the case in the current Shultz mission). Others have been shaped and dictated by the events of the day - war, an uprising or whatever sudden turns the course of conflict might take. The reaction to such sudden proposals is naturally either confusion or rejection by the one or more sides taken most by surprise.

Invariably, and despite the numerous proposals, the conflict continues, with further desperation and suffering for the Palesti-

It is worthwhile to cite the outstanding proposed solutions to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict. They are:

□ Continuation of mildly modified form of the status quo. A form of internal rule for Palestinians in the West Bank and Gaza Strip and connected. in Jordan or both. □ An independent state (demilitarised or otherwise) in the West Bank and Gaza Strip for all Palestinians.

one form or another, to Israel,

From the Palestinian point of view, the precarious nature of the status quo can easily slide into an eventual annexation and continued uprisings. The logical outcome of this will be an increasing temptation to expel the Palestinians en masse, regardless of the consequences. Internal rule of whatever form for the "inside" Palestinians (of the West Bank and Gaza Strip) may be described in many ways. But it cannot be considered a stable resolution to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict because it selectively opts to settle the affairs of only half of the Palesti-

On the other hand, many and maybe the majority of Palestimans, and not an insignificant number of Israelis, Arabs and others, believe that the two-state concept might be the answer: Green Line Israel and a slightly modified West Bank and Gaza Palestine_

nian people.

This conjurs up visions of two neighbours living side by side and conflict-free. These same Palestinians and Israelis may even be excused their optimism that to brIsrael would be convinced or ity to assume that their conflict pressured into returning the with Israel was one and the same as that of the Arab same as that of the Arab same as Golan Heights to Syria.

Here at last we might have a flict. peace with at least some justice This confusion certainly lingbe more stable than the other options discussed above. A peace that might last.

But for how long? The answer requires a more sober approach to the history of the conflict.

The Israeli-Palestinian conflict to resolve had it not been for another factor: the Arab/Islamic dimensions. (It is beyond the scope of this article to dwell on the inter-relationship between Arabs and Islam and the term Arab will be used).

It cannot be over-emphasised that had it not been for this dimension, the Israeli-Palestinian conflict would have been by and large resolved in 1948 and sealed for a long time by the 1967 war which ended completely in Israel's favour. The Palestinians owe at least this much to their fellow Arabs.

It is still not properly appreci-ated what a watershed the 1948 events have been in this respect. The momentous creation of Israel coupled with the disastrous uprooting of the Palestinians were more than sufficient to blur the increasing involvement of the Arab dimension. The Arab-Israeli conflict overshadowed and dwarfed the Israeli-Palestinian conflict. From a Palestinian point of view, the struggle has since been the re-establishment and maintenance of an independent pre-sence in this triad. A presence largely and internationally ignored by Israeli politics and more than occasionally squeezed by fellow Arabs.

From a position of continued suffering and desperation, the average Palestinian, wherever quartered, has sought this independent political stand or its symbol thereof, the PLO. It is precisely as a symbol of this independence that the PLO proved to be most successful, a remarkable achievement indeed when one considers its diverse political components and the repeated military thrashings it has received from Israel and some Arabs.

It would be foolhardy to dismiss the affirmation conferred by the Intifada on the PLO in this respect.

The quest for the re-establishment of an independent Palestinian stand did not appear to be very evident or strong in the period between 1948 and 1967. The trauma of the 1948 events coupled with the subsequent strong championing of their cause by then-Egyptian President Abdel Nasser and others did much to confuse the Palestinians.

Arab regimes of would at least in Palestinian eyes varying colours could no longer tolerate premature risks simp oblige pressures of whatever magnitude exerted by the Palestinians. These risks could have jeopardised Arab development in many crucial areas including the military and economic fields. The would certainly have been easier Palestinians appear to have finally discovered that the two conflicts, though aimed in the same direction, vary not only in magnitude and scope by also in pace. It is imperative that we -

Palestinians, Arabs and Israelis - understand that the resolution of the Israeli-Palestinian conflict, though a vital prerequisite to a comprehensive peace, is no substitute for the resolution of the Arab-Israeli conflict. But resolution of the latter need not preclude the Israeli-Palestinian con-

In the prevailing political climate there appears to be a desire for some measure of stability emanating from both the Arab and Israeli camps. Their reasons are in many ways varied, but one common theme appears to be economic development and the need to spend less on arms.

The superpowers, the EC and others, each for reasons of its own, appear not to wish major disruptions in the region at this stage. This amorphous consensus can be used to help resolve the Israeli-Palestinian conflict thereby imbibing a significant measure of stability to the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Success in this respect would deprive neither Israel nor the Arabs of their option to reactivate the conflict when deemed timely. After all, consensus and stability can only last as long as the prevailing equilibrium would hold (military, economic, political, etc.).

The Palestinians, for their part, have had few options all along. One is that they appear to be in a position to veto any solution that does not grant them their own state. Another, is their capability to permeate instability in a region in which they are stateless. They are stateless everywhere and mostly concentrated in regions that desire stability most.

Israel, on the other hand, has a different set of problems. Its past successes were undoubtedly due in part to its own human resourcefulness. Its military successes have also been due in part to the underdevelopment of its adver-

general secretary of the Middle East Council of Churches (MECC) has issued a statement denouncing the second international "Christian" Zionist congress, which was held in Jerusalem last week. The MECC rejected the congress as a Western intrusion with no authority nor support from the churches of the Middle East.

In a statement to church leaders throughout the world, Kathryn Habib warned Christian leaders:

"If the international manifestations, projected through the so-called international Christian embassy in Jerusalem, occur unchallenged on the basis of Christian faith and ethics, the church's silence will be interpreted as acceptance of the sacralisation of the modern state of Israel..."

Habib added that the "Christian" Zionist meeting of April 10-14, 1988, in Jerusalem was "a deliberate attempt to politicise Christians in support of Israel and its "iron fist" policies, at the expense of the local Christian communities who suffer with all the Palestinians from the injustices resulting from repressive and dehumanising policies explicitly adopted by Israel."

At the same time, the heads of churches in Jerusalem rejected the "Christian" Zionist meeting and its sponsors, the international Christian embassy, stating:

"We do not acknowledge this body nor its activities and conferences ... we are the representatives of Christianity here, venerating and safe-guarding the holy places, and we do not expect people coming from abroad, unaware of our problems, to act on our behalf."

The MECC is alerting the churches of the Middle East and those around the world to disassociate themselves from all programmes and declarations made by the international Christian embassy and its conferences. MECC is distributing background papers and analysis of "Christian" Zionism which will assist the churches in their united stand against "Christian" Zionism. Perez de Cuellar has decided to cut short his trip to Europe due to the tense situation in the Gulf, and was to return to New York Wednesday.

Answering questions after his speech, Perez de Cuellar said he was returning to New York to learn what decision the Security Council would take on the Gulf war.

He noted that an arms embargo was a possible next step if Iran and Iraq did not agree to the ceasefire demand.

"I am leaving soon to return to New York and learn the decision of the Security Council - whether to continue efforts through negotiation or to resort to applying sanctions such as an embargo to one or both parties," Perez de Cuellar said.

Iranian bodies litter liberated Fao peninsula

By Subhy Haddad Reuter

FAO, Southern Iraq — Dozens of Iranian corpses litter both sides of the 30-kilometre rough road leading down the narrow strip of land to Fao in south Iraq.

Bulldozers and other earthmoving machines were busy upturning soil on the corpses as reporters toured the area only hours after Iraqi troops recap-

More young Iraqi troops danced and chanted: "Death to Khomeini and long live (Iraqi President) Saddam Hussein."

Iranian prisoners-of-war, all Revolutionary Guards and numbering more than 200, were being held in a big yard in front of the headquarters of the Iraqi army on the peninsula. Bunkers and military hard-month-long occupation of the southern terminal, and crushed in the assault, were also vanishing under soil as the buildozers moved relentlessly forward. Even some Iranian tanks, ware, installed during Iran's 26-armoured vehicles and heavy machineguns, looking intact, were being dumped under the salty and muddy soil of the Fao

Happy young Iraqi soldiers in hundreds of tanks, armoured personnel carriers and trucks gave "V"-for-victory signs and fired in the air in triumph.

The reporters were driven in army jeeps from the southern port city of Basra, 90 kilometres north of Fao, through the dustcovered peninsula and the town of Fao, once a busy terminal for exports and for goods arriving in Iraq through the Gulf.

Of the old buildings put up by the British army during its occupation in the early 1920s only two or three half-demolished edifices remained.

A large sign in coloured Arabic letters on one wall read: "The headquarters of the Supreme Islamic Council of Iraq," the group led by dissident Iraqi Shi'ite mullah Mohammad Baqir Al Hakim, who now lives in Tehran.

Heavy Iranian loss

Iraqi tractors and tanks towed Iranian tanks, armoured personnel carriers and jeeps, as abandoned rocket propelled grenades (RPGS), light and heavy machineguns, grenades and other weapons were piled up in different parts of the peninsula. At least two Iranian 175-mm recoilless gun batteries were captured intact, their barrels pointing northwards towards the pre-offensive Iraqi lines. No enemy gunfire was heard as the dozens of jeep roared through the town, some as far as Ras Al Bisha, the last Iraqi township at the end of the narrow peninsula.

Ras Al Bisha sits on the point where the Shatt Al Arab waterway, which divides the two warring countries' lands in the south, flows into the Gulf.

Then, an Iranian F-4 Phantom jet opened rocket fire at the Iraqi side close to one of the reporters jeeps, set some palm trees ablaze but caused no casualties. Iraq said later its anti-aircraft gunners shot the aircraft down.

Other jeeps came under heavy machinegun fire from the Iranian bank but no damage was reported.

"Not a single enemy soldier exists on the peninsula's territory now... our brave soldiers have completely liquidated the invaders and only a few were able to escape, swimming through the cold water of the Shatt Al Arab," a high-ranking military official

Andersson snubs Israel

STOCKHOLM (R) — Swedish Foreign Minister Sten Andersson said he would boycott a celebration marking the 40th anniversary of the creation of Israel in protest against the assassination of Palestinian leader Khalil Al Wazir (Abu Jihad).

Abu Jihad was killed in his Tunis home Saturday by a bit squad which Arab leaders and Israeli sources said was sent by Israel.

Andersson said in a statement Tuesday night: "I feel despair about the killing, and anger over the reaction in Israel, whose government has not protested at this malicious deed."

The Swedish foreign minister had been scheduled to deliver the keynote speech at an Israeli gathering in Stockholm's city hall Thursday.

Israel's ambassador in Stockholm, Moshe Erell, criticised Andersson's decision. "Andersson's reaction is completely incomprehensible," he added Sweden has condemned the assassination, and Swedish media have described Abu Jihad as a Palestinian moderate and potenreceives one million tonnes of crude oil a year free. He was speaking to the official Syrian News Agency SANA on his return from five days of oil cooperation talks with Iranian leaders in Iranian officials said the pact, renewed for one year, also stipulated that Iran would supply Syria with oil at market prices.

fran reached the agreement to provide Syria with one million tonnes of free oil in 1982 after Damascus closed an Iraqi oil export pipeline across Syria to the Mediterranean.

Syria, ideologically opposed to Baghdad, is Tehran's main Arab ally in its 7½-year-long war with Iraq.

The Iranian officials said prices were linked to market levels in the agreement because of the depressed state of the world oil market. The Iranian news agency IRNA said last September that Syria owed $1.2 billion to Iran in overdue discounted oil fees.

He said that one of the projects was the establishment of a plant for processing fruit juice and the other for packing and pickling vegetables.

Had these projects been carried out, they would have provided a great relief to local farmers who at present are faced with the problem of marketing their products, Mahasneh noted.

He said that some of the local farmers have not abided by the agricultural patterns systems and they are now suffering from a surplus of crops which has no

In addition. Mahasneh sid that youth centres included in the general plan were not set up.

But, he added, sufficient water is now available for irrigation, thanks to the completion of work at Wadi Al Arab dam which can hold back 20 million cubic metres of water annually. According to the district governor, work on a JD 655,000 vocational training school is due to begin before the end of 1988 and an agricultural vocational training centre at Wadi Al Yabis will be opened during this year.

Mahasneh said that the local population is demanding a central secondary school at North Shuneh to serve the town and neighbouring villages. He also noted that there was need for improving the telephone network in the district.

They said the plans also call for reducing the local acquisition tax on the foreign cars from the present 30 per cent to two per cent, the same as for domestic automobiles. Car operation and licence taxes for foreign cars may

Barnes in England squad for exhibition match

LONDON (AP) - Liverpool's John Barnes, recently voted player-of-the-year by his fellow professionals, was named Tuesday in England's soccer squad for next week's exhibition game against Hungary, even though he is likely to miss the game through injury. The winger, one of the stars of a Liverpool side that is on course to win the League and F.A. (Football Association) Cap double for the second time in three years, suffered a groin injury Saturday and already is ruled out of Wednesday's league game against Norwich City. Liverpool can clinch the league title against Norwich and the injury means that Barnes would miss the celebrations. England manager Bobby Robson said it also means he might miss the trip to Budapest. Barnes is not playing tomorrow night and might have a bit to do to get fit for Saturday's league game," Robson said. "If he doesn't play then, the chances are we won't be able to have him next week." Robson has named a squad of 23 - one more than usual and has recalled Tottenham Hotspur winger Chris Waddle. who has recovered from a hernia operation.

UEFA cuts ban but Koeman misses semifinal

GENEVA (R) — The European Football Union (UEFA) Wednesday cut a three-match suspension on PSV Eindhoven's Ronald Koeman to one game, a UEFA spokeswoman told Reuters. The UEFA appeals board's decision came after a morning hearing in Zunch convened specially before the Dutch team's second leg European Cup semifinal against Real Madrid Wednesday night. The decision means that Koeman will still miss the second leg but will be able to play in the final if PSV beat the Spanish champions. The two sides drew the first leg 1-1 in Madrid. NEW YORK (R) — Michael Dukakis Wednesday became the Democratic Party's likely candidate for the November presidential election after defeating Jesse Jackson in the key New York primary.

Thursday.

U.S. minority groups who wanted to be the first black president, failed to attract enough white votes to underwrite his drive for the Democratic nomination. But he refused to give up, telling hundreds of cheering supporters: We've come a long way. We must keep on coming.

In a bitter contest that had racial overtones, Dukakis, a 54year-old technocrat unknown nationally a year ago, secured 152 of the 255 delegates New York State will send to the party's nominating convention in July, giving him more than half of the 2.082 convention delegates needed to secure the nomination. In the balloting by Democratic voters in New York, Dukakis got 51 per cent, Jackson 37 per cent and Tennessee Senator Albert Gore 10 per cent.

NBC Television said Dukakis now had 1,046 delegates to 849 for Jackson and 441 for Gore,

House panel backs bill to tighten arms sales law

WASHINGTON (R) - In action stemming from the Iran-contra scandal, the House of Representatives Foreign Affairs Committee recommended approval Tuesday of legislation tightening laws on the sale of weapons to "terrorist" states.

The bill would reinforce a ban on arms sales to states designated as supporting "international terrorism" by requiring the president to make detailed reports to Congress of waivers of the ban and imposing criminal penalties on officials and others who violate the ban.

The measure also requires, with certain exceptions, quarterly reports to Congress on transfer of arms between U.S. government agencies that are destined to go

The president would also have to report on the transfer of more than one million dollars worth of U.S. weapons by a recipient country to a third country.

Philippines lifts red alert

MANILA (R) — The Philippines largely lifted a nation-wide military alert Wednesday after what Defence Secretary Fidel

Ramos called a period of "greater stability." Ramos said there had been a decline in insurgency violence around the country and hinted that the danger of a coup attempt by right-wing groups had ebbed. "We are now in a period of greater stability," Ramos told a news conference, citing statistics showing incidents of rebel-related violence this year had dropped to below last year's average of 10 a day. "The red alert has been lifted except for so-called Dukakis took 70 per cent of the state's Democratic white support. including the "blue collar" vote, while Jackson attracted 95 per cent of the black vote. Jackson managed to win support from only 15 per cent of whites — most of them highly educated. A CBS poll of white voters in New York found that only 39 per cent said race was not a factor in their voting choices.

Gore said Dukakis beat him by "a mile." If he bows out on Thursday, delegates he won in southern state contests will go to Jackson in states where the black drug-related deaths and murders. Reagan said he had sent the bill to Congress six months ago and neither the House of Representatives nor the Senate Judiciary committees had yet taken action on the measure.

"I call upon the House and Senate to vote promptly on my bill providing for capital punishdrug dealing, and shen a DEA (Drug Enforcement Administration) agent or other law enforcement officer is murdered,"

The president, speaking at a ceremony honouring law enforcement officials who lost their lives in the war on drugs, said, "It's time for us to send our own message to people who kill cops." Congressional aides said the bili was very broad in scope and seeks to apply the death sentence to any drug-related deaths - for example, if two dealers were arguing and one shot the other.

Under current law, individual ment when a death results from states decide which crimes if any should carry the death penalty. Reagan's bill would require states to allow the death penalty for drug-related crimes.

political stability'

WASHINGTON (R) — Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS) could eventually jeopardise political stability in countries with a high incidence of the deadly virus, U.S. army researchers said Tuesday.
"I'm not going to predict how the balance of power could be affected but it could be impressive," said Colonel William Bancroft, director of Disease Research at the Walter Reed Army Institute of Research, in testimony before an AIDS commission formed by President

Colonel Donald Burke, head of the institute's Department of Virus Diseases, said countries where 15 to 20 per cent of adult males are affected by AIDS could eventually lose a head of state to the virus.

"A very reasonable scenario is that the ruler of a country is going to go," Burke said.

Burke declined to name any specific countries that might be vulnerable to social upheaval caused by the impact of AIDS, a disease that kills by destroying the body's immune system.

"All we need to have is a wide number of cases in stable countries and we will not have stable countries in the future." Burke

He said he considered the menace important enough to be addressed by both the State and Defence departments.

Bancroft and Burke testified on the second day of a hearing by a presidential commission appointed in 1987 to recommend to the Reagan administration measures to treat and combat AIDS. The U.S. Armed Forces are considered a major source of data on AIDS because they have tested all active-duty personnel for the disease and screen all potential recruits for it.

In a related development. Soviet scientists have built a molecular model of the AIDS virus and discovered new features which should help in diagnosing and treating the deadly disease. TASS news agency said Wednesday.

The model was created over a three-year period by two professors at the Gamalei Institute of Epidemiology and Microbiology in Moscow, TASS said. It quoted Valentin Pokrovsky, a leading Soviet AIDS expert, as the source for its report.

Prime Minister Sultan Ali Kishtmand said Tuesday that Afghanistan had suffered in the nine-year-old war but looked towards a bright economic future following last week's U.N.-mediated settlement providing for a Soviet military withdrawal.

His speech in the Afghan capital was broadcast by the official Kabul Radio, monitored in Isla-

"Every proposal for investment, including (any) from the United States, would be negotiated." he said.

Speakes apologises for making up quotes

WASHINGTON (R) — Former White House spokesman Larry Speakes publicly apologised Tuesday for making up quotes for President Reagan, saying he had wronged the U.S. president and damaged his own credibility.

"To attribute to the president words not uttered by the president is wrong, period," Speakes said at a luncheon promoting his new book.

"I have wronged President Reagan, a man whom I deeply admire and respect and I have provided fodder for those who would aim the cannons of criticism at the president I served loyally for six years.

He did not apologise for telling the truth in his book "Speaking Out" but said "I do regret that have overstepped the bounds of propriety in some instances and it is for this that I apologise."

Michael Jackson autobiography hits the stands

NEW YORK (R) — In an autobiography released this week, Michael Jackson has denied having had extensive plastic surgery on his face.

"I have had my nose altered twice and I recently added a cleft to my chin — but that's it," Jackson says in "Moonwalk", a glossy new autobiography edited by Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis and released Monday following a four-year gestation period.

In the book, the singer claims his cosmetic alterations have been exaggerated by an unfriendly press.

"I would like to set the record straight right now," he adds. "I have never had my cheeks altered or my eyes altered. I have not had my lips thinned, nor have I had dermabrasion or a skin peel."

Jackson attributes most of his altered image to a switch from "greasy processed foods" to a strict vegetarian diet.

"Journalists ... say I've had my eyes widened, that I want to look more white. More white? What kind of statement is that? ... A lot of very fine, very nice people have had plastic surgery." Jackson's book was acquired for Doubleday in 1984. "Moonwalk" is a straightforward, first-person account of Jackson's years as a child performer with his brothers on the black music circuit and his subsequent stardom as a solo performer. The book is dedicated to Fred Astaire and includes an introduction by Onassis, who describes Jackson's book as "a startling glimpse of the artist at work and the artist in reflection."

"Moonwalk" describes Jackson being taught grammar and table manners by his record company. In it. Jackson admits to

The 85.91 carat diamond, about the size of a robin's egg, topped the $6.6 million paid in 1980 for a pair of earrings with diamonds totalling 131.86 carats. "To place the present stone in proper historical perspective it may be said that it falls slightly below the Cullinan III (world's largest) now in the British crown jewels, and slightly above the Spoonmaker diamond, now in the Topkapi Museum in Istanbul." gemologist and jewellery historian Neil Letson said in a statement. distri-buted by Sotheby's.

Incest kills

MOSCOW (AP) - A Soviet newspaper Tuesday blamed high infant mortality in the Central Asian republic of Turkmenia on widespread incest among rural residents who intermarry to avoid paying exorbitant traditional downes. The youth newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda quoted a doctor in the village of Yagtylyk as saying that at one nearby collective farm there are 90 families in which the parents are close relatives, and 71 of them had borne children who died within a year. The newspaper did not specify how much of the republic's high incidence of infant mortality was attributable to incest, but said it was a "a high percentage." A Soviet sociology journal last year reported that the infant mortality rate in Turkmenia is more than twice the Soviet national average, which itself ranks 50th in the world, behind most developed countries. The journal, Sociological Research, said 58.2 of every 1,000 children born in the Central Asian republic die within a year. The national infant mortality rate in the Soviet Union in 1986 was 25.4 per 1.000. Infant mortality in the United States that year was 10.4 per 1,000 births. They knock us doctors for the high infant mortality rate," Khodzhamurad Makhemov. a pediatric specialist in Turkmenia's Takhtinsky region told the newspaper. "Yet we are powerless in the case of the death of a child of related parents."

The Times of Zambia said a judge in Kasama High Court in isolated northern Zambia sentenced Rodgers Kaluba, 21, to ten strokes of the cane after he pleaded guilty to avenging his mother's death. State Prosecutor Kawami Lwali told the court a group of villagers mounted a search for Kaluba's mother, Estaki Machanda, when she dis-appeared from Chinsali village near Kasama in March last year. A trail of footprints led them to a hut where a man was cooking intestines on an open fire, he said. The man, named as Laban Mwingi, confessed to killing Machanda and showed them her

Amnesty: Human-rights emergency in Colombia

LONDON (AP) - Amnesty International said Colombian Armed Forces have plunged the country into a "human-rights emergency" by practising political repression against anyone who fails to support them. "A policy of terror and political murder by the Colombian Armed Forces, which has already resulted in thousands of killings and 'disappearances' in recent years, now threatens the civic, cultural and academic lifeblood of the country," said the report for release Wednesday. The Londonbased human-rights group said murder is considered to be the main cause of death among Colombian men aged 15 to 44 and that many victims "are tortured and then hideously disfigured both to prevent identification and to instill terror." Amnesty International said the Colombian government is responsible for the protection of its citizens' human rights and that the security forces must be brought under control.

COLOMBO (AP) - A Tamil rebel leader said the presence of Indian troops in Sri Lanka appears to be sharpening the animosity between the island's Sinhalese Buddhist majority and Tamil Hindu minority. Uma Maheswaran, leader of the Peoples' Liberation Organisation of Tamil Eelam, told the Associated Press in an interview Monday night that he did not believe the Indian troops would ever be able to end the Tamil separatist rebellion. "For as long as there are Indian troops in this country, as a foreign force, the misunderstanding between the Sinhalese Mugabe announces amnesty for rebels HARARE, Zimbabwe (AP) — President Robert Mugabe Tuesday announced a general amnesty for armed rebels, political opponents and some criminals. Mugabe told a ceremony to mark his country's defence forces day he was able to make the offer because of the unity accord he signed Dec. 22 with former opposition leader Joshua Nkomo. That agreement aims to merge Mugabe's ruling Zimbabwe African National Union (Patriotic Front) with Nkomo's Zimbabwe African People's Union (Patriotic Front). Mugabe told thousands of Zimbabweans crowded into the national sports stadium the amnesty would apply to armed dissidents who claim loyalty to Nkomo, political exiles and people imprisoned for collaborating with rebels. NEW YORK (R) — Ousted Panamanian President Eric Arturo Delvalle said in an interview broadcast Tuesday that a multinational force should remove from power the country's de facto leader General Manuel Antonio Noriega. In a video-taped interview handed over to a U.S. television network, Delvalle, who is in hiding in Panama, admitted it would be hard to bring about such joint action against Noriega, who is head of the Panama Defence Forces. But he called for "a multinational force, which should come in and take Noriega out." He said Noriega may be seeking a military confrontation with the United States. "I think Noriega's going mad. Maybe he even believes that would be an honourable way out - that he stood up valiantly against the empire," said Delvalle.
